

Saving the Amur leopard

WILDCATS
CONSERVATION
ALLIANCE

Amur leopards are the rarest of all big cats with fewer than 100 remaining in the wild and their survival still hangs on a knife edge. But hope is not lost, as governments and conservation organisations work together to bring this beautiful big cat back from the brink.

WildCats Conservation Alliance funds Amur leopard conservation projects in the Russian Far East and northeast China that focus on:

- Landscape protection and antipoaching measures
- Facilitating coexistence between people and wildlife
- Population monitoring and research
- Wildlife health monitoring
- Education and outreach in local communities

www.conservewildcats.org/donate

WildCats Conservation Alliance:
Working together with world zoos to protect
Amur leopards and tigers in their natural habitats

WildCats is an initiative of Zoological Society of London
(charity # 208728) and Dreamworld Wildlife Foundation
(charity ABN#61150274463)

